Flexible inlets allow for 0-20° of movement

FloPlast unique flexible inlet chambers have revolutionised the installation process for plastic inspection chambers, the design and flexibility provides a practical, innovative and cost effective solution for the provision of access in a drainage system.

The Mini Access Chamber (MAC), which can be installed to a maximum depth of 600mm was the first of its type to incorporate five inlets, and with the flexible sockets allowing for 20° of movement in any direction, makes the MAC a versatile option within the drainage market.

Large Inspection Chambers have been available for many years, but the addition of the patented flexible inlet sockets adds an extra dimension to this product. Full flexibility of this range is completed by the inspection chambers riser, each riser is 235mm high and has a sectionalised, ribbed outer and smooth inner, the riser can be adjusted for height by cutting just above each of the larger external ribs, this gives a reduction of 60mm for each section removed, if the adjustment required is an intermediate distance, ie 95mm, then the extra requirement can be cut from the top flange.

Traditionally large inspection chambers could only be installed up to 1.2 metres high, however there was a change in the building regulations in 2000 that allowed these products to be installed as non-man-entry inspection chambers, as long as the entry cavity is no more than 350mm diameter. The screw down plastics over and frame with reduced access, meets this criteria, allowing FloPlast's large inspection chambers to be installed up to three metres deep.

Our unique, versatile and flexible inspection chambers range is complimented by a wide range of additional products to complete the Underground Range.
